NEW REVOLUTION IN STANDARDS ACCESS

The cost of accessing ISO standards can be unaffordable and time consuming, particularly for small/medium companies operating in the marine industry

With this in mind, ICOMIA began working with industry colleagues Wieger de Wit and Marnix Hoekstra, innovative developers of www.rulefinder.net, to provide more affordable and convenient access to their renowned 'standards library'.

Rulefinder is a database providing boat builders, component manufacturers and other industry professionals with an online, single-source library of global marine-related ISO standards.

Previously users could only subscribe for annual membership to the database, however after consultation with ICOMIA, Rulefinder's developers have launched a monthly subscription package - ideal for companies on a budget, or those simply not requiring all-year-round access.

MORE ABOUT RULEFINDER

Upon spending eight years surveying boats and certifying them to the RCD, de Wit and Hoekstra realised there is too little knowledge on the workfloor. Builders do want to know about the rules, but it's just too complicated to get to them - hence Rulefinder.net was born, and access to standards has never been easier.

Or cheaper, now Rulefinder offers monthly access, Wieger de Wit explains:

> "We took on the challenge of reducing the cost by limiting the time you actually spend on the rules. This is a great solution for those builders or designers who have a single project and don't want to pay the annual cost of a full subscription. They can just sign up for a couple of months and still be sure they have the latest standards at their disposal"

Rulefinder's state-of-the-art knowledge database combined with understandable directions and explanations strategically placed in its Library provide subscribers with quick access to laws and industry standards. Subscribers can access different modules and with updates taking place 24/7, the Library is never outdated. In addition, Rulefinder has selected packages giving specific access to class rules, the large yacht codes, MGN 280, the workboat code, the blue, brown, red and yellow codes and their associated ISO standards.

Together with the advanced search function and affordable access, Rulefinder makes standards available to a wider audience and can be tailored to everyone's needs.
